HCASC Schools Give Back

This year, a community service component was introduced as part of the qualification process. The submitted projects included: gradeschool mentoring programs; homeless outreach; Habitat for Humanity and dozens more. Many participants commented on the sense of personal fulfillment from working for these charitable endeavors.

Based on the submissions, American Honda will award a $2,000 grant to one of the projects in the name of the participating HCASC team(s).

Congratulations to all the institutions that successfully completed Part 1!

Pre-NCT season is around the corner

With the new year, another season of exciting HCASC Pre-NCTs begins. Since their formal inclusion into the HCASC process, the Pre-NCTs have emerged as invaluable tools for training, team development and scouting opportunities for savvy coaches.

HCASC schools may attend ONE Pre-NCT from each group of Pre-NCTs (e.g., one might attend ASU's tournament from Group A and Harris-Stowe's from Group B). The defending champions from Prairie View are also hosting, so sharpen your wits and stretch your buzzer thumbs for some amazing HCASC action!

HCASC friends for life on your bookshelf...and your television!

It's no surprise that the HCASC family is full of achievers. This year, a volunteer, an alumnae and a former coach shared their talents with the creative world through two books and a television program!

Monita (Jenkins) Bell, an ASU superstar published her first book, entitled Getting Hair "Fixed." The text examines the poetry of Black female poets of the 60s and 70s through the lens of the turbulent politics of the era and the pressures of beauty ideals.

PJ Peterson, 2003-04 coach for Fort Valley State has stretched his wings into the publishing realm with his inaugural novel. Men Want to Exhale Too tells the tale of Melvin Arthur Nobles as he struggles with success, and the search for his soulmate.

Moving from soulmates to soul food mates, N.C. A&T volunteer moderator Ryan Maltese joined forces with his wife to compete in the Food Network Challenge Thanksgiving Special. The Malteses put their Southern spin with a Cuban twist on traditional Thanksgiving fare for a festive food-filled faceoff.
